Community is key to African/Black Power - political, social, economic and cultural. It is our foundation for creating abundance and prosperity, self-reliance and independence, and our overall health and wellbeing

Ta-Nefer Ankh Community

How often have we heard the African adage: “It takes a village to raise a child”? However, most people who mouth this adage fail to realize, or to mention that “You must first have a village”. The adage presumes that the village exists. For, without a village there are no ‘village people’ to raise the child.

A Village is a Community—it is composed of families united. Community enables us to harness the power and resources sufficient to transform our lives, environment and relationships in a life-centered way; and to do government and industry on a grand scale. Without Community this cannot be done.

By and large, Africans/Blacks in America are village-less (community-less). For the most part we are corralled populations, concentrated in areas controlled and exploited, directly or indirectly, by other people. In these ‘corrals’ we lack the elements of community - unity, organization, institutions, projects and programs—controlled by us and working on our behalf.

Without Community we are powerless to defend ourselves; we are like ‘fish out of water’ suffocating from the oppression, domination and exploitation of those Communities using their power to do so —Whites, Asians, Arabs...

The primary reason we African/Black people are unable to make a significant difference in our conditions is due to our backwards approach - we seek to have programs, projects, institutions, organization and unity without Community. This is putting the cart before the horse. Community enables unity, organization, institutions, programs and projects; otherwise they will not, and do not receive sufficient support to exist or survive.

TaNefer Ankh Community is leading the initiative to create African/Black Community to empower ourselves with capacity to realize our life-centered vision, and to neutralize our adversaries. We are creating African/Kemetic Community using the life-centered model of our Ancestors. We are transforming our conditions from that of exploited and dominated victims to that of empowered, capable, self-reliant and independent people. We are creating the Village in which to raised our children.

Community is fundamental; without it we fail - Sba Heru-Ka Anu

Community

Community is the source of power to transform the world.

Community enables us to create and do government, industry, institutions, innovation and multi-task in ways that we cannot individually or in small groups. Through Community we can generate and maintain food-farms, shelter-housing, transportation-travel, communications-media, education, security, recreation, and unity on a large and grand scale, in short, all that is needed to prosper as a society.

Community defines our cultural and historical identity - past, present and future. Who we are comes not only from our parents, but also from our historical family group (race, tribe, kin, clan, community) Community defines and identifies our ‘Way of Life’ and World View—including our vision, guiding philosophy, practices and traditions. Without Community we become aimless beings.

Unity

Community is families united.

Community enables Unity— allowing us to come together on behalf of each other. Unity is the milieu in which we grow power. Unity gives us ability and capacity to affect change. We all know the saying: “There is strength in numbers”. Though Unity we become an empowered force able to realize our vision, our will, our goals and objectives.

Organization

Organization is how we direct power.

Through Organization we are to able focus our power, resources and energy in a given direction to achieve our goal and objectives. Organization gives us to capacity to use force and persuasion against obstacles and challenges. Organization takes us out of the realm of chaos and into that realm of order and control.

Institution

Institution is how we use, preserve, convey, and recreate resources and power.

By way of community unity and organization we are empowered to create, maintain and direct Institutions to serve our needs and desires. By way of Institution power we can create and develop the economic, political, cultural, and social society that we envision.

Programs and Projects

Programs and Projects are where we direct our power to realize our vision.

Though institutions we are able to implement Programs and Projects to manifest our goals and objectives, our needs and desires.

Community is the solution to success—it is the fundamental building block to Unity, Organization, Institutions, Programs and Projects; also it is to our power and greatness
